Description of Physical and Landscape Features:
This vernacular turn-of-the-century house sits back from the street on a flat lot. The house sits under a large gable creating 1-1/2 story structure with 1/1 wood double-hung windows with lamb's tongue detail. Concrete steps with metal railings lead up from the yard to a hip roof porch on the first story. The foundation has been replaced with concrete block, and the siding has been covered with wood shingles. To the south and closer to the street is a non-historic associated garage with a substantial paved driveway that extends into the yard of the house.
